An Evening to Benefit Pediatric Brain Tumor Research

About the Brain Tumor Institute at Children's National Medical Center:

Children's National Medical Center has provided hope to sick children and their families—regionally, nationally, and internationally—for 140 years. Led by Dr. Roger Packer, the Brain Tumor Institute at Children's National seeks to care for and cure children diagnosed with brain tumors by integrating research into the clinical care mission.

Our research program is focused on:

- identifying molecular targets for alternatives to chemotherapy.
- identifying cellular targets and creating medical treatments specific to each individual child's tumor.
- seeking to understand and mitigate the side effects of brain tumor treatments, therefore ensuring that children not only survive, but are able to thrive.

The Brain Tumor Institute evaluates one out of every ten children in the United States with a brain tumor, and many of the pediatric brain tumor therapies used around the world today were pioneered by Children's National.

About National Brain Tumor Society:

At the National Brain Tumor Society, we are fiercely committed to finding better treatments, and ultimately a cure, for people living with a brain tumor today and those who will be diagnosed tomorrow. This means effecting change in the system at all levels.

Our strategic initiatives and funded programs aim to improve an understanding of brain tumors to transform research findings into new and more effective treatments as quickly as possible. To achieve these goals, we foster collaboration and change within all facets of the drug discovery and development landscape and invest wisely in key initiatives poised to deliver results.

Our current initiatives are focused on pediatric developmental neurobiology and aim to analyze the development of a child's brain to identify therapies which could be effective, and minimize long-term side effects for pediatric brain tumor patients. Our goal is to ensure that children not only survive, but are able to thrive.

Our shared vision is to allow every child with brain cancer the chance to receive the very best possible therapy, and to survive their brain tumors without devastating long-term side-effects from their treatments.

SPONSOR BENEFITS & OPPORTUNITIES

Sponsoring Bella Notte is a chance to make a difference in the lives of children living with brain tumors. As a sponsor, your organization will:

- Elevate your company's visibility through our special event recognition benefits.
- Engage your employees and customers in your corporate philanthropic efforts.
- Gain exposure to regional business leaders, philanthropists, and world-class physicians.
- Partner with two leading brain tumor research institutions:
 - Children's National Medical Center, one of the best pediatric hospitals in America.
 - National Brain Tumor Society, the largest nonprofit brain tumor organization in the nation funding pioneering research for over 20 years.
- Provide critical funds to help develop better therapies and outcomes for children on their journey to overcome brain cancer.
